They Say They Care About Pen Cancels

Welcome news from the United States Postal Service and Canada Post Corporation. Both have announced that they want to do something about pen cancellations and other undesirable markings on postage stamps. The difference between their solutions is that the USPS suggests ways for the collector to avoid such marks while Canada Post does something about it.

USPS, to a collector: "One way would be to use envelopes that do not contain recycled paper. The other is to have the Post Office hand-cancel the stamps for you."

Canada Post, to its employees: "It is imperative that all material entering the mail-processing system, regardless of the entry point, receive official Canada Post Corp. postmark cancellations. Defacing the postage applied to mailable material through any other means, including pencil, or pen, is not deemed to be an acceptable Canada Post Corp. cancellation."

Foley Identifies 'Whatzit'

Our thanks to Tom Foley, president-elect of the American Philatelic Society, for taking time to write to us about the Danzig stamps illustrated in the last issue. He said:

"I believe the cancels on the Danzig stamps illustrated in the current issue of The Circuit are parcel post cancels. These were briefly mentioned and illustrated on pp. 184 & 186 in the December 1959 issue of the American Philatelist in the conclusion of a 7-part series on Danzig."

If anyone else needs help with identifications, send the items (or a photo) for our Whatzit? feature.

Membership at New High

The big news is the surge in membership. The not-so-big news is the election of officers for new two-year terms.

The sudden growth in membership resulted mostly from Pres. Ken Jenkins' letter published in the American Philatelist. It brought about 75 inquiries and about half became members. Another source of new members, a dozen or so, was the exchange of information with the New Mexico Philatelist.

The latest membership number given out is #396. However, that does not represent the membership total, as there have been a few dropouts.

A list of new members is on Page 6. A brief resume of the collecting interests of some of these new members will appear in the next issue.

Public Relations Officer Dave Nelson gives highlights of the election on this page. The Ballot is on Page 7. Go ahead, send it in.

It bears repeating: Nobody's feelings will be hurt if you vote for a write-in candidate. There are no contested races but none of the incumbents expected, or wanted, to have a lifetime job! Jenkins, for one, has served notice that this is the last time around for him.

There are two ways to establish oneself as a leader and do-er. One is to volunteer your services in some area of the society's operations. The other is to share your views (in The Circuit) as to new directions, new services, and changes in the way things are done. If you have ideas, opinions, let's hear 'em!

A Note on $10 Stamps

New Zealand has issued a $10 definitive stamp showing a rare Little Spotted Kiwi, and the Republic of the Marshall Islands has released a new $10 stamp showing a Blue Jack, a fish belonging to the family Carangidae.

Both are attractive stamps, but we think anyone buying these in other than postally used condition is either a turkey or a sucker; depending on your preference for bird or fish topicals.

Election Notes By P.R. Officer

In this issue you will find a ballot for election of officers to serve the next two years. You will note the same names; i.e., no contested positions. You may, of course, write in a name for any position.

It was not the desire of the current officers that this be a "white" ballot. All of them are tired of carrying the load, especially when it seems that only 2% or 3% of the membership is willing to do anything to help with club activities.

No one will be hurt if you write in another name. Of course, in the absence of a major campaign, to be realistic about it no write-in will actually win.

The next election will be different! Ken Jenkins assures me he will not stand again. Herb is pretty tired of the time-consuming and often thankless position managing our funds. Others are going to have to emerge as do-ers and prospective leaders, or we won't have an ISWSC.

We have lots of new members and the group is healthy—but lacking in action participants. Hence I have added two unofficial lines to this ballot to allow you to donate your time, or your money, to help make ISWSC all it should be.

—Dave Nelson (#25)

Get Children Interested in Stamps, But Don't Forget the Parents!

(Responding to a suggestion by Arlene Futrell, former editor of The Circuit, Mrs. Doris Schatz, #362, wrote the following.)

Twenty-four years ago I arrived in Southern California with two pre-teen boys. Since I had to work, the hours between 3 p.m. (when the boys got out of school) and 6 p.m. (when I arrived home) were a daily nightmare for me. To top it off, the boys were constantly fighting and picking at one another.

One day I asked them if there was anything, like a hobby or something that they would like to do instead of fighting.

They agreed they would like to have a stamp album like their uncle's. I bought them the 3-volume Minkus Global. With three volumes and over 150 countries to choose from, there wouldn't be much room for fighting. About three years later, as sports and girls became more important, the stamp albums ended up in the garage and stayed there almost 11 years. One day the youngest boy, then in the Navy, wrote that he no longer wanted the stamps he had collected and asked if I wanted them. I unpacked the three volumes and went to a local dealer to see about updating the collection. After several months there were eight volumes.

Every week I attended the dealer's bid sale, a time of real excitement. Almost every stamp I got found a home and no duplicates. Several months later my son came home and gave me two storage albums filled with beautiful mint stamps from all the countries of the Far East.

Until 3 1/2 years ago I was a very active collector. I belonged to an exchange club until the man who ran it retired and sold it. I also actively traded stamps. However, I became very ill and when it became apparent that the asthma would not improve I retired from my job and moved into a small easy-to-care-for apartment in a seniors building. I have once again picked up my activity in stamp collecting.

When I received a membership application from Mr. Gerlach, I signed up right away because I feel I can really trust him. I hope in time I can become a very active member.

I would like to make a suggestion to those who work with children: Do all you can to involve the parents in the stamp collecting process. As the children reach their teens other interests become more important and that is natural. If even one parent becomes involved, then the collection can continue, with the child as an adult coming back to the hobby.

My collection now consists of 12 Minkus volumes through 1985 and two Scott Internationals, 1986-87. I may be a dreamer, but I really hope that when the time comes that I can no longer work on my collection one of my boys will pick up where I leave off.

I hope I will be able to become more active in the club, less home-bound.

Vice President's Report

Applause for the work of the Society's new editor, James Burt. His first issue was outstanding. It's too bad that he has consented to do only a few issues. Formatting was good and readability easier. Additionally, the issue was chock full of his own articles and editorials as well as other interesting tidbits.

Along the same vein, I would like to echo President Ken Jenkin's sentiments to Arlene Futrell. She gets a resounding "Well Done" and the Society's thanks and appreciation for her contribution of time and talent as editor for many, many informative issues of The Circuit.

VAPEX '89 will be held at the Pavilion in Virginia Beach, Va., starting Friday, noon, 10 November. A table for ISWSC members to use for registration and a room for a meeting has been requested, so anyone attending should have the opportunity to meet and get acquainted with other members. Hopefully, there will also be an entertaining slide program.

From the donation packets received, it looks like we have signed up quite a few new members. Many included notes with the stamps, and all were appreciated. Some asked if the material sent was suitable—everything received was okay. There are no real guidelines for type of material, except that off-paper stamps are preferred; that would help keep postage costs down when re-mailing them. Commemoratives, definitives, used, unused—all are needed, and I try to keep what I send out on an even basis by putting everything received into a big box, mixing them up a bit, and scooping out as needed for parcels.

Don't forget the auctions! Dr. Johnson will accept auction lots until the tentative deadline of 1 December.

Happy collecting...

Ken Costilow, #142

On the Agenda

This month: The election. Send in those ballots! New terms begin Jan. 1.

December: Election results will be announced. The deadline for submitting auction lots is Dec. 15.

February: Auction list published. Bids must be received by March 10.

April: Auction lots will be mailed to successful bidders by April 1.

Changes at Harris, Minkus

H. E. Harris & Co., Inc., has come out of Chapter 11 bankruptcy, is reorganized and ready for business. The company has streamlined by reducing the work force and the number of products.

Minkus Publications, Inc., has been sold to Noyus Debut, whose first goal is to restore timely delivery of album supplements.

Not All the Same

Not all coil stamps have straight edges on two opposing sides. Some (including Vietnam, Germany, Hungary and perhaps Great Britain) are perforated on all four sides. Also, not all stamps with two opposing straight edges are coils (Sweden and U.S. booklet stamps, for example).

FROM THE DESK OF THE PRESIDENT

First, let me offer congratulations to Tom Foley and John Hotchner as president and vice president of the American Philatelic Society. They are both well qualified and popular and they richly deserved the high positions they have won in the world of philately.

It has been summer and we have had the usual run of vacationing house-guests, but by the time you read this it will be time to get the albums out again.

I have had some correspondence concerning the amount of club business that is in The Circuit. It seems that some members feel we should have more of a philatelic journal.

Since we have no meetings, the purpose of The Circuit as the name implies is to keep the membership around the world informed of the activities of the club, the membership, and provide articles or items of general interest whenever space and the articles are available.

Many members, I have been told, are afraid to volunteer for some of the positions open in the ISWSC because they feel that they are not professionally qualified, especially for editor. What we need is someone with the interest and desire to help out, plus access to a typewriter and/or a computer, a good general knowledge of philately and a working knowledge of the English language. A telephone where you can be contacted is also a necessity.

If you have the above qualifications, please contact me or James Burt about the editorship. You will get all of the advice and assistance you need to get going.

Help Wanted!

Perhaps other members have the same problem I have, and perhaps someone has already solved it:

As a subscriber to the USPS new issue service, I receive a sheet of each commemorative stamp shortly after it is issued. Along with it comes, free, a nice 5"x8" or so poster with information relative to the issue and a protective plastic sheet with black backing sheet. Up to now, I have not seen or heard of any type binder being offered by USPS, or anyone else; that these things will fit. One side is nicely punched with holes from top to bottom, but only two of the three prongs of a three-ring binder will accept the holes as punched.

I don't intend to keep the sheets of stamps intact, and I would like to use the protective covers for other philatelic purposes: Does anyone know of a binder or a scheme that could be used to make these things useful?

—Ken Costilow, #142

Secretary-Treasurer's Report

President Ken Jenkins wrote a letter to the editor of the American Philatelist, published in the July issue. It generated (as of 28 August) 72 inquiries regarding membership in our club. And of these, so far, 35 new members have joined. (See listing in this issue.) We have also received 13 other inquiries resulting from publicity thru member Hotchner's (#62) column in Stamp Collector, from an item in Linn's, and from info in the New Mexico Philatelist. Several of these have joined. So there are folks out there, real live worldwide collectors, anxious to join with us. All that is needed is to get out the word. Will you help?

Now for some routine: Rovere (#105) has a new zip code, 94028. The following have new addresses: Trent (#226), 7912 Charles Thomson Lane, Apt. 3, Annandale, VA 22003; Wheeler (#217), 150 Maple St., Hornell NY 14843; Skillings (#339), 4720 Chevy Chase Dr. #502, Bethesda, Md. 20817. Mail addressed to Disario (#294) is returned; no address correction yet.

Philatelic mail is causing clutter and confusion (he didn't say that—we did!) at the office of Dr. Wallace Johnson (#212), who is chairman for the auction. Please address all club correspondence to his home, 806 Overlook Dr., Beckley, WV 25801-9234.

My typo in the May-June issue listed the name of #347 erroneously; it is Ouellette, starting with O instead of Q.

Cox (#301), dropped from membership last spring, is restored to full membership, but the following members are dropped for non-payment of dues: Lou (#230), Weigel (#284), Wiedemer (#286), Bruce (#309), Mayer (#310) and Hodges (#311).

Please update your rosters before you forget!

On our application form we ask if the new member would like to trade with other members. It never occurred to me until recently that the word trade might be misconstrued because it has more than one meaning. So let me clarify that and I will also correct the application form. In the ISWSC, trade means the same as exchange or swap. It does not mean "to buy and sell." Sorry 'bout that, as we used to say in 'Nam.

The term used has also been misunderstood. It means postally used. A used stamp has come off an envelope or package sent through a national postal system. It does not mean "on cover" nor does it mean "CTO." A CTO is a "cancelled to order" stamp, cancelled when in mint condition as part of the printing process and sold to collectors without ever having done anything. Most of us don't want anything to do with 'em. Communist governments are especially guilty of this practice (though not the only ones, by any means). It is done to raise money for the government concerned. Help stamp out CTOs!

The club acknowledges with thanks the following donations:

#313 Clarke — $3.00; #362 Schatz — $2.80; #374 Peterson — $1.60; #377 Bernstein — $1.00; #381 Collura — $1.60

I have received one more letter in support of my position that articles in The Circuit be of interest to general collectors and not on specialized subjects. This was from Hargrove (#363). To help along this line he is volunteering to write a series of articles himself. I hope more of you will do this. You don't have to be an expert. You don't have to be a great writer (or else I couldn't put in my two cents' worth). All you have to do is be interested in worldwide stamp collecting (which I think covers all of you or you wouldn't be members) and have information or an opinion to communicate.

One subject that I'm often queried about is albums, high cost of, and ideas to avoid same. How about it out there in stamp land? What do you do? How do you mount your collection? Another subject is "completeness." This worries lots of people. How do you keep it from bothering you? Or does it?

I will end with some good news. As of 28 August, 66% of our members are on the October billing cycle for dues renewals. We're closing on our goal of 99% very fast. So, don't wait for the postcard notice. Send in your dues now! Save your club some rasbuckniks! And, incidentally, save yours truly some work. You can also pay dues up to three years in advance. Many have done that.

Happy stamping!

Herb Holland, #31

Help Offered

To the editor of The Circuit:

As a new member of ISWSC, I wish to offer my services to any member who sends a self-addressed stamped envelope.

As a worldwide collector for over 50 years, I would gladly help any member with a philatelic problem, to the best of my knowledge. I don't profess to know it all, but over 50 years you learn a lot.

That Dam Stamp—

Errors Made in Commemorating Engineering Marvel

By KEN JENKINS

In May, 1935, one of the biggest construction projects in modern history was completed two years ahead of schedule. It is agreed that if undertaken today, it would never get off the drawing board. Environmental impact surveys and other such bureaucratic red tape would have it tied up forever.

The project I am speaking of is Boulder (Hoover) Dam on the Colorado River near Las Vegas, Nev. The Dam was honored by a stamp issued Sept. 30, 1935. The purpose of this essay is to look at the background of the dam and the stamp.

In the early 20th century, study began on building a dam to control flooding along the lower Colorado. In 1928, President Calvin Coolidge signed the "Boulder Canyon Project Act" calling for construction of a dam at or near Boulder Canyon. Incidentally, the dam was eventually built in Black Canyon, 20 miles away, not Boulder Canyon, but because of that act it was referred to as Boulder Dam.

However, when Secretary of the Interior Lyman Wilbur christened the project it was as Hoover Dam in honor of then President Herbert Hoover. The name Hoover Dam was not favored by Southern Nevada residents but, more important, in 1933, the Democrats took control of Congress and Franklin Delano Roosevelt was inaugurated as President. The new Secretary of the Interior, Harold Ickes, officially changed the name back to Boulder Dam on 14 May 1933.

The Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce learned that a stamp was under consideration in early 1935 and began pushing the idea through their postmaster and congressional delegation. In April, Secretary Ickes met with President Roosevelt and the Secretary suggested such a stamp to the President upon the request of Nevada Senator Key Pittman.

FDR, being a stamp collector, immediately liked the idea and wanted to design the stamp himself. He had Secretary Ickes order a photo taken from the air about one-half mile downstream from the dam as he thought this would be a good viewpoint. The last concrete was poured on 14 May 1935 and on 24 May

President Roosevelt inquired of Postmaster General James A. Farley about the possibility of a stamp being printed. Any suggestion from the President to Farley was taken as an order and the wheels began to turn.

President Roosevelt suggested a stamp with three panels portraying newly irrigated fields and electric transmission lines on the sides and a view of the dam in the center. It was by now early July 1935 and on the 18th the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was ordered to come up with designs for the stamp. The stamp was to be issued on a date coinciding with President Roosevelt's visit to dedicate the dam. Tentative date was set as 28 Sept.

In early September, at least five designs arrived at FDR's desk. With a few suggested changes, the decision was made on Sept. 13, a Friday. In 48 hours the news was out and the Republican Party and former President Hoover were not happy because Secretary Ickes had the stamp read "Boulder Dam." Harold Ickes felt that this design feature would "fix" that name in everyone's mind.

Another group of unhappy people were the citizens of Arizona. The notice stated that Boulder Dam was in Nevada and nowhere did it say that the dam actually straddled the state line and that Arizona had a claim to it also. To top it all off, stamp collectors who normally receive about a six-month notice of new stamps were only getting two weeks to get their cacheted covers ready.

While two dozen companies specializing at the time in first day cover cachets were working around the clock, another money wrench was thrown into the works by world events. Huey Long, U.S. Senator from Louisiana, was assassinated and Italy invaded Ethiopia. Due to these events, it was decided that the President should remain in Washington.

After the uproar had settled a bit, the dedication was set for 30 September.

Meanwhile, cachet makers, dealers, and collectors from all over the world had sent in cacheted covers with 28 September on them to be processed in Boulder City, Nev., on that day. By the 28th there were some 125,000 covers on hand.

The cacheted covers contained many factual errors because of the rush to get them ready. Some of the more common were the previously mentioned "Boulder Canyon" and a Great Seal of the State of Nevada that wasn't. That only a few pointed out that the dam was astride the Arizona-Nevada state line was another of the gaffes.

Meanwhile in D.C. chaos reigned. Normally it took at least three weeks to get an engraving completed for a new stamp. This time there were only two weeks and that included the printing. Two engravers, working 12-hour shifts around the clock, got the job done in 10 days. The presses commenced rolling on 23 September at the rate of 100,000 per hour, a record at that time. When President Roosevelt arrived in Boulder City on Sept. 30 there were a half-million stamps waiting.

The first day cancel of Sept. 30, 1935, 9 a.m., was applied until 6 October by special permission of the Postmaster General. 295,000 stamps were stuck on 166,180 covers and cancelled. Collectors were unhappy about the long wait for their covers, even as they are today. It couldn't be helped. In addition to Boulder City having a very small post office, the covers then had to be trucked to Las Vegas, which at that time wasn't much larger. There the mail was put on the trains, one a day in each direction (east- and westbound).

Except for the name of the dam, things began to quiet down. In 1947 President Harry Truman signed into law a bill that changed the name back to Hoover Dam. Today it is still officially Hoover Dam, but there are probably equal numbers of people who call it by each name. A trip to visit it and marvel would be well worth your while if you happen to be in the area. The hardships overcome to build it during the Great Depression are a marvel in themselves, but that is another story and has nothing to do with philately.

The members owe many thanks to these officers and volunteers. It takes many hours of work and figuring to fulfill their responsibilities. None of them planned to make a career of it. Get involved! If someone thinks enough of you to nominate you for office, accept!

Advertising Policy: All ads dealing with philatelic concerns are acceptable. We reserve the right to edit out objectionable language. Advertisers are expected to respond to all inquiries, so be sure you can handle the responses before you offer to trade, buy or sell. If you have a bad result from answering an ad, contact the editor. We will try to resolve the conflict.

RAECH'S RUMINATIONS

By R.H., #363

If you're reading this in The Circuit, you'll know it got by the editor. Being a new member of the ISWSC, I don't want to be an upstart but I figure if you belong to an organization you should participate. This is my way of doing that.

I've made no commitment but I'll try to make this a continuing saga and, hopefully, you'll get some pleasure and/or benefit from the effort. I will not deliberately try to create any controversy but sometimes I do suffer from "tongue-in-cheek/foot-in-mouth" syndrome which may be misunderstood in some quarters. I have no wish to make The Circuit my forum and, if you take exception to anything that appears here, drop me a line.

By now, you're probably asking yourself, "Who is this guy?" or "Who does he think he is?"

Well, I'm a general collector, like you; am married, 61 years old and father of four (also have two grandchildren). Been collecting for 52 years and have a collection of somewhere between 70-75,000 (I still measure the size of a collection by the number of stamps, rather than by inches, feet, yards, miles or dollars). While I'll latch on to just about anything, I'll go out of my way for Philippines, Ecuador, Belgian precancels, or trains on stamps. I've bought approvals, packets, mixtures, odd lots. I've made buys at auctions and bourses. I've traded in exchanges and with individuals. I've even managed to sell a few on occasion. Like you, I've run the gamut.

Am I qualified to write for The Circuit? Maybe yes, maybe no, but I'll give it a shot.

Being a new kid on the block, I'm still getting the feel of what it's all about. I intend to join the Omni Exchange shortly. I expect to participate in both auctions, both as a bidder and contributor. I'm not sure about the Sales Circuit, at least at this time. Like most of you, I still have to work for a living and have my collection to work on so that available time is limited, but we'll just keep hinging along.

Now that you know a little bit about me, I'll give you a break from this baloney. Let me leave you with this thought: Happiness is a rainy weekend during the summer, when you can't cut the grass, tend the garden, etc., but have a stamp collection to fill the void.

North Dakota Stamp Rekindles Memories

To the editor of The Circuit:

Seeing the new North Dakota stamp brings back memories to this old broken down stamp collector with failing legs and failing eyes.

I was raised in a small North Dakota town, Almont, started by homesteaders. The little town (still 200) at one time had three grain elevators. When their use dwindled, these elevators were moved to other towns. A company in Minnesota made a business of this.

They had use for one of our elevators, so put it on rollers to go. It was on a Saturday, and they moved it about a mile out of town and went home for the weekend. When they came back to get it, a windstorm had blown it to pieces. At the original location in town, there wasn't a breath of air.

I'll be back in Almont on Labor Day to help dedicate a little museum. I will be one of two of the town's original inhabitants there for the occasion. The other is Thelma Klingensmith (her husband is a grandson of Sitting Bull). When the town was started, I was 7 and Thelma was 2.
