ONE OF 1989's OUTSTANDING STAMP DESIGNS

Without question, one of the candidates for best stamp design of '89 is Finland's Tribute to the Centennial of the Finnish Kennel Club. The souvenir sheet was issued March 17, 1989, and depicts four Finnish-bred dogs.

The upper left stamp shows a Lapponian Herder. This spitz dog is black with white markings and is especially popular with reindeer herders of the northlands.

The upper right stamp depicts a Finnish Spitz with its typical reddish-brown or reddish-yellow coat. They are friendly at-home pets, although they are traditionally hunting dogs by nature.

The lower left stamp is of a Karelian Bear dog. As its name suggests, these dogs were used to hunt bears.

The lower right stamp features a Finnish Hound. This hunting breed is the most common in Finland. Due to its high energy level, this dog prefers a country home.

The sheet was designed by Torsten Ekstrom. It was printed in four color process in a quantity of 125 million. This sheet will appeal to dog lovers and other animal topicalists, besides collectors of Finland and worldwide stamps.

Editor's Note: The President's Column was inadvertently left out of the Jan-Feb 1990 issue. Our apologies to the President and to the membership for this slip-up. This is Pres. Jenkin's Jan-Feb. column.

FROM THE DESK OF THE PRESIDENT

Although the election results did not make the December edition of The Circuit, Dave Nelson has assured me that I was re-elected. I want to thank all of you for your vote of confidence but it would have meant so much more if it had been competitive.

I would like to make a note here in regard to member #413, William D. Radford dba Nordic Stamps. Mr. Radford is the source of the Scott Catalogs you have been getting at cost from Tom Ginsberg, #70. I think he has already demonstrated that he is entitled to the support of the members.

The other departments all report that they are in good shape to begin 1990. Omni exchange has just expanded to a third co-manager. The sales circuit is getting new books out under the new manager Bruce Negrycz #331. Dr. Johnson reports that he has a good supply of auction lots that should appear elsewhere in this issue. We also have a new editor, Rita Kallal, #26, effective next edition; she served as editor once before so is not "new" to the job!

I have had correspondence from a number of sources regarding the lack of courtesy to fellow members. If you have stated you are willing to trade on your membership application and someone writes to you in that regard, common courtesy requires that you at least respond. If you experience this problem, please drop me a line and let me know who they are.

I have also had a request that we publicize the names of dealers who do not deliver as ordered....wrong catalog numbers, water-

ONCE IN A LIFETIME TRIP INCLUDES PHILATELIC ADVENTURES

During January this year I took a once in a lifetime "Ski and See" trip to Innsbruck, Austria. Due to the "Great Snow Drought," there was more seeing than skiing.

A day trip took us to Venice, Italy, where we fed the pigeons in Saint Mark's Square and rode in gondolas on the canals. I had time to take in a stamp store on the Square that was fabulous. I was able to purchase some additions to my collection. The dealer spoke limited English and I speak no Italian, but stamps are stamps in any language and a Visa Card is international money any place.

January 12th was the 500th anniversary of the postal service in Austria. In 1490 (two years before Columbus discovered America) the Counts of Thurn and Taxis established a private mail service in Innsbruck which later provided mail delivery to the old Holy Roman Empire. This lasted until after the defeat of Napoleon and the unification of the small German states. This became the foundation of the Austrian postal service.

Austria, West Germany, and Belgium held a joint celebration and First Day Ceremony at Innsbruck. The event took place in an exhibition hall and conference center adjoining the Hofburg, the Habsburg Imperial palace. The royal family used the palace when they were in Innsbruck. Innsbruck is the capital of the Austrian state of Tirol. The Chief of State of Austria still makes use of the Hofburg when he is on state visits. The modern exhibition center is as modern as the palace is opulent.

-- Unluckily for me, the after effects of a small drink of water in Venice the day before, made it impossible for me stand in the long lines to get stamps and cancellations, but I was able to view all the frames of the stamp show. I enjoyed this very much.

At the main entrance to the exhibit hall, there was a restored mail coach from the old Austro-Hungarian Empire. The old yellow mail coach makes frequent appearances in national events.

Before we left Innsbruck I was able to visit four stamp and coin shops. I did buy some nice postally used stamps, but mostly talked stamps.

I had hopes of getting some stamps on a one day stopover in Copenhagen, Denmark, on the return trip. However, stores close early on Saturday afternoon and remain closed until Monday A.M.

As wonderful as the trip was, the best part was coming through customs at O'Hara Airport in Chicago and heading for the regional bus back to Wisconsin and home. ... Della L. Burmeister (# 97)

There was this fellow having his stamp collection appraised by a dealer. Unfortunately, about the same time, he was caught robbing a store and was sentenced to five years. Upon release from prison, he returned to the dealer to see what his stamp collection was worth. The dealer said, "Come back next week!" ... Len Attwooll - # 359 against the USPS by electing NOT to collect mint US stamps past 1989. I'll buy stamps for mailing, but I will no longer support the USPS by saving US mint stamps. At the rate the USPS is going, there won't be many younger people to collect the mint stamps in the future. Nearly every child collector I've known started with used stamps, so I feel there will be a lot fewer in the future. The USPS and the philatelic community will pay in the future for the USPS tunnel vision of today.

COLLECTING BRINGS MANY SPECIAL REWARDS

I want to thank you all for remembering a fallen comrade, the obituary of Glenn Mitchell (#291), was a tribute not only to a veteran stamp collector, he also was a disabled war veteran. I traded stamps with him for years and he was a booster of hand drawn "entires," as any of you who ever traded with him knew. I salute him for his contribution to the "art" of stamp collecting. Since I worked in a print shop, I was able to send him boxes of paper, salvaged from the paper-cutter. Instead of throwing away good "cut-offs" I could send him fifty pounds of paper for the UPS charge of five dollars. If any of you ever saw his original art work using stamps, you can see how much good was achieved by a humble effort. It doesn't take a lot of money or time to share your love of stamps with your friends and fellow man. Thank you, and keep up the good work.

I would like to propose a topic for conversation: I collect and trade worldwide postage stamps, for which there is no lack of interest, but I also stretch that definition to include Revenues, my favorite being Mexican Revenues. I would like to turn you on to this little appreciated area of collecting. Many of the old issues list in the Steven's Catalogue for a few pennies each. They are beautiful and many are 100 years old. Mexico did not have an income tax, so they sold revenue stamps for just about every kind of business transaction, which paid for the government services, so there were a lot of them issued. Also they had to be saved for 5 years to prove the taxes were paid. I think that if more collectors knew about them, then we might see some lots at auction: I would like to communicate with anyone interested in more information or trades of this fine, fun material. I also know a new catalogue is in the making, as my mother (who has been collecting them for 50 years) has been collaborating with the author. Since no dealers I know of handle this item, it is up to us "civilians" to dig this stuff up. This not a big ticket item, so I do it for the pleasure alone. Try it, your might like it!

RAECH'S RUMINATIONS

I've been bothered by recent comments in The Circuit regarding members who write to other members and get no response. I think it's only courteous to answer another member, even if it's only to tell him to "get lost," in a nice way, of course. At least he knows where he stands.

When we join up, we're asked to indicate whether we collect used/mint or both. Some may interpret that to mean we're willing to trade. If a member does write and ask if you'd like to trade, give the guy an answer. I doubt whether we're so overwhelmed with inquiries that we can't find time to drop the guy a short note or postcard.

I've been trading steadily with two members since joining the group. I like to feel that we've got a good thing going. At least there have been no complaints up to now. I asked my two trading partners what their experiences have been. One indicated that he'd written to four members and received two responses....I guess I'm one of them. What about the other two?

The second indicated that he is presently trading with four others (including myself). He tells me that he has no trouble finding trading partners among the members. In fact, he says members have contacted him and that he never refuses to trade unless their collecting interests are incompatible. I realize that this is a very small sampling taken from guys who enjoy trading but I think we're using the ISWSC as it was meant to be used and having fun and adding to our collections at the same time. So, people, if a member gets in touch with you, get back to him. If you can work something out, so much the better. If not, at least you gave it a shot and, maybe, you gave someone a lift by caring enough to respond.

A while back the group attempted to sponsor a contest to determine "The Most Beautiful Stamp." That went down the drain due to lack of response. It was recently announced that the Donation Auction was being discontinued for lack of participation. I assume this means that there was a lack of entries and a lack of participation. I'm sorry about this because I'm an auction freak. I would have enjoyed taking part in it.

Now we have the "Regular Auction" to consider. By the time you read this, the deadline for bids will have past. I know I entered a few bids. How about you? Did you

COLLECT STAMPS

SALVAGING A MISSPENT CHILDHOOD

At present, I consider myself to be a very inactive collector. I started as a kid, about eight years old, as the result of a birthday present, and was avid for about eight more years. Then, through high school, college, the army, graduate school, jobs, travel, vacations, etc., I always accumulated items "for my retirement" and I am still doing that at age forty-seven.

Early on, I learned a lot about countries, currencies, geography, flags, historical figures, etc., and it is very interesting and educational. My local friend is the best local Trivia player and I am usually second or third, so there is some reward for a misspent childhood. But, I still accumulated everything while realizing that I could not try to collect "everything." I spent a lot of time thinking about what to collect and how to "specialize." I also realized that an album to please me would be difficult, if not impossible, to find.

Just about two years ago, I decided a few things. First, my album will probably be composed of blank, crosshatched pages, organized any way that I wish (maybe even in file folders, by country). Second, my first love is aviation and my main theme could be aviation and/or airmail from anywhere! I am moderately active in a local model airplane club. However, then I remember that I also love art, engineering, and stamps on stamps, so there is some topical branching out here. In addition, from an investment standpoint, I am interested in older items. I have given some thought to limit my "fun" worldwide collecting to the "first 100 years of stamps — approximately" and my newer items to topical subjects. It seems like a compromise that I can now live with. So, in reality, I am not as much a specialist as I desire to. While I do want to "exchange" some of my duplicates for other items, I have to do something to better organize what I have in order to find out which are duplicates! Sort of a "Catch 22."

I have a few similarly inactive friends: a man who is interested in trains; a female minister who is interested in Bible themes; a brother interested in sports; and decided independently that they were accumulating for retirement. I have two retired friends who are very active worldwide collectors (I've sent them into about ISWSC). I have two pen-pals with whom I correspond in English: one in Poland and one in Czechoslovakia.

I have relatives in Canada and distant relatives in Czechoslovakia. Since the latter know only Slovak, it is very difficult to correspond with them, and a lot of my free time is spent learning their language. Several neighbors have sponsored high school foreign exchange students and I have a few college classmates in the diplomatic corps. I just learned at a college reunion that one of my classmates is a stamp and coin dealer in Florida. So, on occasion, I have access to stamps from England, Canada, Argentina, Chile, Belgium, Germany, Spain, Taiwan and France.

Occasionally I like to buy a mixture, look through it and then give the rest to someone less fortunate. Locally I helped out a Girl

READ MY LIPS

The Publisher/Editor maintains only one file copy of each newsletter. All extra copies of The Circuit are sent to the Secretary. So I have no extra copies to send to anyone.

While the Publisher does maintain the mailing list, it becomes very troublesome and costly to have to forward address changes & requests for lost Circuits back to the Secretary several times a month, so he can get everything organized for his reports. Being a very busy person with an antiques business and a printing shop to manage, I am fearful that I will forget to mail something or something will get lost in my possession. It is much easier and less costly for us all, if you mail these directly to our Secretary. (I recently received an address change that was sent from former editor Arlene Futrell, to just past editor James Burt, to me (the new editor) and finally I mailed it on to the secretary.) Scout Brownie troop that had just started collecting stamps, but it turned out they were mostly interested in space and science related stamps, to tie in with earning badges. I hear now that only one girl will continue with stamp collecting. I answered an in Linn's about an Oregon school group, but it now appears that they have stopped. At the time, I did not know about Ben Franklin Clubs and I have not found a local one. Recently I have been contacting disabled veterans' groups, but haven't heard from anyone yet.

After all of the above, let me admit that I do not have a huge or extremely valuable collection, but it is valuable to me. It is also unwieldy and I have always wanted to sit down and organize it. But alas, I always seem to have more important things to do. Maybe when I retire?  Joe Palko (#421)

DOES ALL THIS SOUND VAGUELY FAMILIAR?

ISWSC sounds like something I have been searching for. After visiting the area stamp clubs and talking to members, I joined all three for different reasons. None of the clubs has a newsletter and, as far as I know, only one gets the Confederation Newsletter (CN) for members and that is how I saw your ad.

Interestingly, I've answered many ads in the CN, to be told that I was the only one who had responded. The readership is a mixed lot, as I understand. New York state stamp clubs have the option of whether their members receive it, based on not giving out the members' addresses or not spending club money to have it mailed to members.

I joined the first club because they seemed the friendliest, and I met one special new friend during the first meeting I attended. In addition, they meet above a small restaurant, so it is possible to get something to eat if you don't get home for dinner. But, they are a very small (attendance usually 10 - 14), far away, and they do not have member auctions, trade night or a "mixture or kiloware" night.

Then I joined a second club because of a friend who is very active in several area clubs and even presents programs to clubs within a 100 mile radius. This is the largest (usually 20 - 24 in attendance), always has an auction or two, sometimes a mixture night, but they seem fairly "stuffy" and most members are very specialized with many "cover" collectors. I have no interest in covers and felt out-of-place. Then I joined a third because of another friend from church, but I found them to be the "stufiest." They are intermediate in size, and very inconvenient for a meeting location.

All the clubs have two meetings a month with a program, Christmas parties, and do not meet in the summer. Spouses usually do not attend meetings or parties. None has a newsletter or any kind of correspondence, that I am aware of. That is one of the reasons I enjoy CN, because it serves as a newsletter for all, especially with the calendar of meetings.

Many of the older members seem to thrive on the meetings as a source of social contact and many of the older members stick together closely, so adult newcomers feel left out or mildly intimidated and I can imagine how youngsters would feel.

Most of the clubs' program topics are by a specialized collector on their particular specialty and usually very well done. Honestly, however, over the past two years I have only been interested in two or three programs. I travel a fair amount, am active in a church organization, and am not eager to go to more meetings. So, from a club's viewpoint, I have been a poor member and I will probably rejoin only one, in order to continue receiving the CN.

One of my near term goals was to give away some of my less valuable duplicates, especially the recent issues from around the world. A longer range goal is to trade some my more valuable duplicates. For the older part of my collection/accumulation, of course, I would have to do some organizing in order to do that, but I look forward to it.

ISWSC has a newsletter (I don't need a glossy or every month, but it is nice to communicate) and ISWSC does NOT have meetings. There are a lot of exchange clubs advertising in Linn's, but I have not found one that I really like. Most seem too high pressure or expensive for me, and do not seem to have many options. On the other hand, ISWSC has an outlet for youth, (I would like to see an outlet for disabled veterans), your club has several exchange/sales programs, and sounds "low key" enough for me, if I want to stay interested but INACTIVE, at my own level and speed by mail (using commemeratives).

So I've decided to give ISWSC a try. It sounds very interesting! (You had to read all of the above to find that out!)

THE EDITOR WRITES

Thanks • Glad to be back as The Circuit editor again. First, I want to thank all who have written with good wishes and I am grateful to those of you who have sent articles, items, news, etc. I am delighted to see a higher level of participation by the members. I have tried to catch-up the backlog of items and have gotten in as much as I could in this issue. If, however, you don't see your item this time, rest assured it will be in next time. I also appreciate everyone getting the items to me on time.

Thanks • Another thank you goes to James Burt for filling in as editor when no one else would take the job. You did a super job, Jim!! Now you can take a breather and get out there and play some golf!

Deadline • As Pres. Ken Jenkins mentioned in his column - we are changing the deadline for the newsletter. As you will see on page 5, I have lengthened the deadline to the 7th of May. Since we don't need the extra days for mail transit from editor to publisher, we are going to try the shortened deadline for a couple issues. If I find the time is too short, we can change back. I would however appreciate receiving items as far in advance of the due date as possible, since I have to type it all into the computer myself...in my limited spare time.

Ripley's Believe It or Not • The philatelic world seems to have taken on a kind of "Ripley's Believe It or Not" air of late. There's the Scott's 1990 Catalogs with a complete changeover in pricing. • Australian, US, and other postal services issuing Official First Day Covers, to the detriment of private business • Australia (the first of many?) to issue a $20 stamp (and we thought $5 & $10 stamps were overkill!!) • and now the seeming coup de grace - the US postal service intimidates charity organizations into not accepting donations of used stamps nor selling same!! All in the name of preventing the crime of stamp washing - seems to me the postal service ought to be working on better inks and papers to prevent stamps from being washed and reused. I don't know about you, but this latest move by the postal service has raised my dander!! Let's catch the criminals and/or 'take measures' to prevent washing instead of depriving collectors with the least amount of money to spend, children and the elderly, from enjoying used stamps at reasonable prices. I have used these types of mixtures with Scout groups and young stamp club members to teach them how to find unusual things like "socked on the nose" cancels, plate number coils, varieties in colors and perfs, perfin, etc. We have also used these same cheap mixtures to cover cigar or shoe boxes in which to store the kids' philatelic tools for transporting to meetings, etc.

Take a Stand • I am very disappointed in that religious charity organization for caving in to the USPS. It seems to me that the bureaucrats continue to make more and more rules and/or laws even though they were not elected to any office and somewhere we are all going to have to take a stand against the insidious creeping monster who is taking away more and more of our personal rights. We obey the law, but we pay the price just the same as those who break it. Take a stand against these sneaky bureaucrats by encouraging your church groups to save stamps and give them to the children in their church, local school groups, and stamp clubs. I have taken a stand
