

MAIL BID SALE #72 - LOTS OF NEW STUFF!

Once again, we are continuing on our theme of French Colonies. Check out Togo and the Southern and Antarctic Territories. There is quite a bit of classic Europe here as well: France, Germany, some elusive Italian issues. This sale also features a number of post office-issued albums with stamps including four beautiful hardcover albums from France, with slipcases. There is also quite a bit of mint Israel. Don't miss the cover that has been to space (Lot 17)! Check out the Bargain Bin for some surprises; most items have minimum bids reduced 40-50 percent from their previous level. Thanks to all the folks who submitted lots and those who bid in the last sale.

THE MOST COMPLETE STAMP CATALOG

The most complete stamp catalog ... and updated online stamp catalog in the world ... begins the introduction to the catalog on www.stampworld.com. I am a duffer; I prefer the traditional hard-copy catalog. When I need some information I found on the net I print it off. So why am I writing about an online stamp catalog?

My preferred method of obtaining stamps for my albums is through trade or exchange. I collect stamps from the Middle East, North Africa and the Horn of Africa: regions that aren't commonly collected in North America. I find that I usually have to correspond with locals or international staff working in these regions. My collections are developed enough that I do not need one-for-one exchange of inexpensive stamps. I need to trade by want lists. Tra-

I do not know the process by which this catalog is updated. Is it by members submitting new stamps when they obtain them? Or do specific members take responsibility for keeping specific countries/regions current? Similarly, is the evaluation of monetary value provided by members using selected price lists from dealers and/or philatelic bureaus? I did not find an ditional stamp catalogs - either hard copy or digital - are expensive. At this time the Stampworld catalog is free. It is extensive in its world coverage. Both persons trading stamps have access to the same catalog, and the same catalog numbers and values, providing confidence to both sides of the exchange. This is the reason I have had an increase in individuals who want to use stampworld.com as the basis for their trades.
